The Zero Conditional

We can make a zero conditional sentence with two present simple verbs (one in the 'if clause' or condition and one in the 'main clause' or result):

- If + present simple, ... present simple.

The result of the 'if clause' or condition, is always the main clause.

This conditional is used when the result will always happen. So, “if water reaches 100 degrees, it always boils”, it's a fact.

Let's check some examples:

- If babies are hungry, they cry
- If you touch a fire, you get burned.

Now the activity.

I. Read the verbs in brackets and use them right to complete the following statements. (1pt each, 10pts total).

1. If I _____ (be) in a new city, I _____ (like) to visit new places.
2. If it _____ (rain) a lot, everyone _____ (get) happy.
3. If it _____ (be) very cold, the lake _____ (freeze).
4. If he _____ (drink) milk, he _____ (get) sick.
5. If you _____ (work) hard, you _____ (pass) every class this semester.

II. Read the following statements and match 'Condition' and 'Result'. (1pt each, 6pts total).
